The modern style for monograms is pretty straightforward. Even if the typeface has lots of swirls, the letters are generally in a straight or almost straight line, as is the case with my simple charted monogram below: copyright Napa Needlepoint. Earlier monograms were more elaborate, intertwining letters, often so much so that it's hard to tell what the letters are. Dover has a book of charted monograms of this type. The monogram below, for William & Mary, is typical of this style:

Choose an alphabet style and size that fits your needlepoint project. The easiest way to do this is to count both the horizontal and vertical canvas mesh threads in the area where you will place the monogram. Compare this figure to the number of stitches wide and high in your chosen alphabet design, allowing for extra space between letters and words.
