The Panzer I was a light tank produced in Nazi Germany in the 1930s. The name is short for the German

Panzerkampfwagen I ("armored fighting vehicle mark I"), abbreviated PzKpfw
I. The tank's official German ordnance inventory designation was Sd.Kfz. 101 ("special purpose vehicle 101").

The Panzer line then culminated with the introduction of the Tiger II, or "King Tiger". This model was a much-feared monster limited only by production, logistical, and mechanical issues towards the end of the war. There are a total of [9] WW2 German Panzers (1939-1945) entries in the Military Factory. Entries are listed below in alphanumeric ...

WW2 German Panzers (1939-1945) - Military Factory

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
The 2nd Light Division (sometimes described as a Light Mechanized division) was a motorized division created in 1938 during the German rearmament. It participated in the invasion of Poland. After the end of the Polish campaign the division was converted into a panzer division, forming the 7th Panzer Division.

2nd Light Division (Wehrmacht) - Wikipedia

Both the Panzer I and II were considered as stopgaps before the arrival of more advanced models, namely the Panzer III and IV. Despite of this, the Panzer II remained in service throughout the war, being the main light tank in German service and being used as a scout, although many wheeled vehicles preformed this specialized task far better.
