The Cider House Rules is a novel by American writer John Irving, a Bildungsroman, which was later adapted into a film and a stage play by Peter Parnell. The story, set in the pre- and post-World War II era, is about a young man, Homer Wells, growing up under the guidance of Dr. Wilbur Larch, an obstetrician and abortionist. The story relates his early life at Larch's orphanage in Maine and follows Homer as he eventually leaves the nest and comes of age in the world.

The Cider House Rules (film) - Wikipedia

"The Cider House Rules" tells the story of an orphan who is adopted by his own orphanage and reared by the doctor in charge--who sees him as a successor. At one point he runs away to pick apples and fall in love, but his fate awaits him and has been sealed at his birth. At least, I think that's what the story is about.

with a sense of incompleteness. The cider house and its rules remain meaningless title words. One of the characters, Fuzzy Stone (Todd Weeks) is allowed to wheeze himself into oblivion without any hint of his eventual "rebirth." It's one thing to skip the second act of a really bad play or to leave
