The Writings Of The New Testament

The books of the New Testament were all or nearly all written by Jewish Christians—that is, Jewish disciples of Christ, who lived in the Roman Empire, and under Roman occupation. Luke, who wrote the Gospel of Luke and the Book of Acts, is frequently thought of as an exception; scholars are divided as to whether Luke was a Gentile or a Hellenistic Jew . [51]

The books of the New Testament were composed not in order to satisfy historical curiosity about the events they recount but to bear witness to a faith in the action of God through these events. A history of the New Testament is made difficult by the relatively short time span covered by its books when compared with the millennium and more of history described by the Old Testament.

New Testament | Description & History | Britannica

The New Testament, then, contains those writings that reveal the content of this new covenant. The message of the New Testament centers on (1) the Person who gave Himself for the remission of sins (Matt. 26:28) and (2) the people (the church) who have received His salvation. Thus the central theme of the New Testament is salvation. 2

New Testament manuscripts can be roughly dated on the basis of (1) the writing material and (2) the style of writing. The material of most manuscripts is parchment stretched and smoothed from leather. The oldest parchment manuscripts are written on large-size in majuscule or uncial letters.

The Origins of the New Testament

After the Law and the Prophets, the third major division of the Old Testament is called the Writings. It is translated from the Hebrew word Ketubim, from katab, meaning “to write.” In the Greek the name is Hagiographa, which means “Holy Writings” (David Ewert, From Ancient Tablets to Modern Translations, 1983, p. 32).. The Writings section can be arranged in three parts:
